Collision of Express Trains

PITTSBURG, November 14.—The second section of the western express on the Pennsylvania railroad collided with an eastbound express train at New Florence, Pa., this morning. The work took fire and one Pullman burned. Two were killed, Henry D. Minot of Boston and Mrs. S. H. Angell of Washington. The accident occurred between two sections of the western express which left New York last evening. It was caused by fog which prevented the engineer of the second section from seeing the first section in time to stop. The first section was made up of baggage, sleepers and day coaches. The second section was composed of baggage, express and mail cars. The first section was behind time and the second crashed into the sleeper Biscay, telescoping it ten to twelve feet. The sleeper caught fire and was nearly destroyed. The Achetes, the next sleeper, was thrown from the track.

The scene following the collision was exciting in the extreme. The passengers became panic stricken and in their efforts to get out broke the windows and crawled through. As quickly as possible the passengers in the unfortunate Biscay were removed. It was found two were killed outright and 11 more or less seriously injured. At least four of the injured it is thought will die. They were conveyed to houses in the vicinity. The uninjured arrived in this city shortly before noon.

The injured are: R. S. Delaney and wife, Haymarket, Va., very severely; J. F. Matthias, Baltimore, seriously; J. Helman, Washington, internally; Wm. Rochester, Hoffman house, New York, internally; C. C. Hicks, Providence, R. I., seriously; Miss M. V. Kellogg, Richmond, slightly; J. H. Hill, Sunbury, Pa., internally; injured serious; Wm. Miller, Allegheny, Pa., very serious; Henry McCorbick, engineer, Nineveh, very serious; Mrs. Wichle, very serious.

Later news reports seven more injured, making 18.

BOSTON, November 14.—H. D. Minot, killed in the accident near New Florence, Pa., was born in Boston but has lived in St. Paul eight years. He was president of the Eastern railroad of Minnesota and director of the Manitoba.

Freights Wrecked

BELLAIRE, O., November 14.—A collision occurred on the Baltimore and Ohio road near Scott's station at 4 this morning between freight trains, killing John Watson, engineer, Jas. Fleisher, fireman, and Jas. Barrett, fireman, Thos. Burke, another employe, can not recover. Both engines and cars are completely wrecked. The accident was caused by disregarding orders.

Widening the Gauge

DENVER, November 14.—The track of the Denver & Rio Grande between Aspen and Glenwood Springs has been spread to a standard gauge and was completed last night. The force numbering some 900 men was moved to the eastward this morning and is working on that part of the division between Glenwood and Leadville to-day. The weather is favorable to-day and the track will be standard gauged to-night, so that the first broad-gauge passenger train for Aspen on the Rio Grande will leave Denver to-night at 7:30. The train will be run on special time in order to test the fixed by the new schedule. All of the narrow gauge equipments have moved eastward and will be concentrated in the yards at Salida. There are over 800 miles of narrow gauge track in the Rio Grande system, on which this equipment will be used, and some of it will be used in interchange on the Rio Grande Southern.

The Line Finished

DENVER, November 14.—A. S. Hughes, general traffic manager of the Denver and Rio Grande road, to-night received a telegram from General Manager S. T. Smith, who is at Pueblo, saying that their broad gauge between Leadville and Aspen was completed at 3 o'clock this afternoon, and the Rio Grande Junction was finished at 5:30 this evening.

Koch's Consumption Cure

BERLIN, November 14.—Professor Koch publishes an article in the Deutsche Medinizische Wochenschrift on the cure of tuberculosis. Professor Koch says he is yet unprepared to indicate the source from which the curative matter is derived and the method of preparation for the reason that experimental work is still in progress. He states that the curative lymph itself can be obtained from Dr. Libbertz, address No. 20 Luegenberger Strasse, Berlin. The lymph is described as consisting of a brownish transparent liquid so prepared as to be proof against deterioration when diluted with water for use. The matter is said to decay. It is necessary, the cure that the attenuations be perfectly sterilized by heat and preserved in a solution of phenol 5 percent. When taken into the stomach the curative matter proves to have no effect. It must be applied subcutaneously by means of a valveless syringe which must be rinsed with a solution and kept in a perfectly aseptic condition.

In all the experiments after the injections if any tubercles existed in the body the appearance already described supervened. In no case was no exception noted when a dose amounting to one hundredth part of a cubic centimeter of the substance had been applied. Professor Koch expresses the belief that he remedy certainly proves a cure for incipient phthisis. Whether however the cure will be final and definite has not been clearly proved. Further experiments and continued use of the remedy will be necessary to determine this question.

The curative properties of the new remedy, Prof. Koch declares are of still greater importance for diagnosis. What the fluid kills is not the tubercular bacilli but the tubercular tissue. This fact indicates the well defined limits which the efficacy of the remedy will be able to reach. In other words it can only influence living tuberculous tissue. Its [illegible] effect whatever upon dead tissue [illegible] dangerous mat[illegible]

Sir Lyon cited a [illegible] statistics to show that the consumer always paid the extra duties. He entered into a long argument to show the effects of the tariff, contending that they would be disastrous to [illegible] farmers, whose wheat, the [illegible] kets were dwindling, their necessities were increasing in price more to enrich a few manufacturers. He thought that the framers of the bill might be suspected of a covert attack upon Canada. He declared that Canada would be able to supply Great Britain with all the food she now gets from the United States. In less than 20 years the United States will have no surplus food to send so it is to England's interest to aid in developing Canadian husbandry. The natural effect of the McKinley act, he maintained would be to draw England and Canada closer together. Then how, he asked are increasing manufactures to be absorbed by decreasing consumers?

Referring to the American meat inspection bill Sir Lyon declared that the empowering of the president by congress to boycott nations was a dishonorable and unworthy of a great nation. The boycott had never hitherto been recognized by international law. He considered that the reciprocity clause in the McKinley bill had the same direct on but a deeper meaning. It was a safety valve to prevent the high pressure from blowing up protection. He believed that Mr. Blaine intended it rather as a reciprocity clause rather than as a retaliation clause.

Commenting on the recent elections in the United States Sir Lyon said the protectionists were not destroyed but they would fight in the future with their flags furled. He declared that already there were signs in Germany, Italy and elsewhere in Europe of flames of distress in the protection camps.

In conclusion Sir Lyon said he hoped though England might not be injured for a year or two by the United States tariff legislation she would not dream of reprisals.

The Times this morning in a long editorial says that Sir Lyon Playfair's speech is the most complete exposure yet published on either side of the Atlantic of the futility and absurdity of the McKinley tariff. The opponents of high protective duties it says could hardly do better than to circulate his dispassionate argument among the American electors before the next contest for the control of the executive power which is almost certain to be fought on this issue.

Birchall's Execution

WOODSTOCK, Ont., November 14.—At 8:29 this morning Reginald Birchall was launched into eternity for the murder of his fellow countryman F. C. Benwell. He partook sparingly of breakfast at 6 and then began to prepare for the final ordeal. He put on a white flannel shirt with collar and vest but asked the turnkey to see that this was replaced after the execution by an ordinary white shirt with attached collar and tie. He wanted to wear a starched collar at the execution but said because it might interfere with adjusting the rope around his neck.

A [illegible] were all opened and the crowd admitted to pass through the yard in which the scaffold was erected and about fifty were admitted. The execution appeared on the scene at 25 minutes before 8. The rope in hand and began to fit things in order. The scaffold was made of three pieces of timber six inches square two uprights sunk into the ground and a third timber across over the top. The rope ran over the cross beam and a cap stretched the [illegible] of the noose. The rope was [illegible] a cord to a staple. Cutting this cord releases the weight which falls and jerks the culprit into eternity.

The prisoner came next deathly pale but resolute, his jaws locked with the fixity of death and his step steady. His jet black hair and moustache made the pallor of his face seem like marble. He was dressed in dark colored tweed clothes, a white flannel shirt, with a black bow at the collar and light patent leather shoes. He looked so young and there was such an expression of unmovable courage that men who saw him and knew him to be deserving of death in the eyes of the law, forgot he

B. W. STEELE,
Manager of the GAZETTE

If the United States does not come out of its tariff troubles all right it will not be from lack of advice from our English friends. Abuse of the United States seems to be the fashion in English politics, from Gladstone down.

It was natural that there should be some friction and trouble in arranging the preliminaries of the World's fair But the public has an idea that there has already been quite enough of this sort of thing and that the management must commence at once on united and energetic action if the fair is to be made a success.

The following editorial from the St. Louis Globe-Democrat is important, not only from the intrinsic value of the ideas which it contains, but on account of the position and influence of the journal from which it is taken. The Globe-Democrat is the leader of stalwart republicanism in the southwest. It has been noted for uncompromising devotion to the principles as outlined by the leaders of the party. Its loyalty to the party has been unquestioned. An editorial from such a source and of this character will undoubtedly have weight. Unfortunately for the party, its influence is not, however, likely to determine republican action in the line suggested. A majority of republicans are probably not willing to admit that the McKinley bill was a mistake, especially in the way of an increase of duties on the necessities of life, and the provision for sugar bounties. But partisanship is likely to overshadow statesmanship, and the party will have to take its chances in 1892 from the possible manufacturing prosperity resulting from the high tariff bill.

If a statesman held the speakership at this time, was at the head of the ways and means committee, or was in any way in a position to do most to the republican party in connection with making about a thorough revision of the tariff law in favor of the many should [illegible]

Every article advanced by that act should be reduced to the old rates or lower, the duties which were cut should be permitted to stand, and in some cases which will readily suggest themselves, would be cut still farther, while the free list enlarged. The Globe-Democrat and most of the other western republican papers said last summer, when the tariff bill was in course of preparation, that for the advances in duties the party would suffer in the [illegible] What was prophecy then is history now.

An immediate revision of the tariff law in the direction suggested would benefit the republican party in two ways. It would place the party again in harmony with the sentiment of the people and would close to the democracy the avenue now open to it to strengthen itself in the country. Both the pressure of public opinion and the traditions and tendencies of the party in Congress would compel the democrats to oppose and support this scheme or to at least refrain from throwing any obstacles in its way. The whole programme, if vigorously and intelligently undertaken, could be carried out, so far as concerns the house, in five or six weeks. The party would then stand in a position to take stock when it assembles at the opening of the next session.

The objections to this course will at once occur to the reader, namely: The new tariff has not been long enough in operation to show what is in it, whether good or bad; frequent changes in duties are demoralizing and injurious to business; the delay which the agitation in the tariff would cause would postpone other necessary legislation to the next congress. All these objections have some force, but none of them are as weighty as they appear to be. All reasonable republicans now see that the advances in duties were a mistake, and they feel confident that the republican party will be reconciled sufficiently to the act in its present shape to enable them to make a successful canvass in 1892. A moderate and reasonable change in the tariff now would prevent a change of the opposite sort being made three years later by a democratic congress and a democratic president. The republicans might lose half a dozen votes in the electoral college in 1892 by letting the next congress arrange a readjustment, but by revising the tariff now the republicans would gain ten votes at least for every one they would lose from that source. If some of the appropriation bills, should, under this plan, fail of passage by March next, then the president could call the fifty-second congress in extra session to deal with them.

Condition of Trade.

NEW YORK, November 14.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: To those who have long expected a severe reaction in the stock market have now seen the average of prices thrown back to a lower point than has been touched at any time for more than four years It is only the fact that the indebtedness throughout the country is the largest ever known, not much inflated or endangered by speculation, and so far sound, that complaints in regard to collections have been much fewer than [illegible] The check now sustained may [illegible] probably produce some shrinkage in [illegible] sales and diminution of prices, but [illegible] industrial and commercial conditions have been so favorable that specu[illegible] consequences are the less likely [illegible] business seriously.

[illegible] figures show that at [illegible] events in Wall street have had little or no effect. At Boston the transactions have been somewhat limited and money is firm at high rates. Wool sales are smaller, but more activity is expected with the opening of the heavy goods season in December. At Philadelphia money is tight and little commercial paper offered or selling. Wool manufacturers are buying more liberally, with a slight advance in some grades. At Chicago money is active at 7 per cent, but country banks are sending in funds for investment, and eastern disturbances are little felt. No other western points show disturbances in trading, though money is generally close. At St Louis the rate is 7 to 8 per cent, and the volume of trade larger. at Cincinnati money is tight, but collections very fair; the clothing season exceeds expectations and the grocery trade is very good At Omaha, St. Paul, Denver and Kansas City, money is in good strong demand, collections healthy, and business good Southern cities make much the same report.

The iron output November 1 was 177,958 tons weekly against 179,263 October 1, and considerable decrease in production is expected if prices yield The demand for manufactured products is not distinctly smaller, and in railroad supplies a decrease is foreshadowed by financial trouble. The coal trade is dull, holders trying to realize October prices, and the high price of coke causes complaint Tin is a trifle lower, copper steady and lead weak because of considerable importations India rubber is lower, breadstuffs are lower, exports in October showing a heavy decrease Wheat falls 5 cents for the week, corn 2½ cents and oats nearly 2 cents.

The treasury has put out $6,000,000 more silver notes, but has taken in $1,400,000 more of other money, its offer to buy bonds being ineffective. While exports of products were enormous in October, they have fallen 12 per cent below last year's for November thus far at New York; but a lower excess over imports fails to affect the money market, since the movement of securities this way is large. It is not to be forgotten that the demand for money is largely due to the unprecedented volume of business thus far.

The London Stock Market.

LONDON, November 14.—At 2 30 p. m. stocks, compared with last night's closing prices, generally showed a decline of a fraction.

The amount of bullion gone into the Bank of England on balance to day is £1,039,000.

The stock market closed with fractional declines generally in American securities.

The Colorado Springs Improvement Company, owning this property, have contracted for the construction of several fine dwelling houses, to be built within a year, to cost not less than $5000 and upwards each.

These and other improvements soon to follow ensure a quick and substantial advance in values, and the permanent prosperity of Knob Hill.

[illegible] LOCK BOX, 907, [illegible]

The Western Art association has just held its third annual exhibition of pictures in the city of Omaha. The World-Herald, in a very elaborate review of the exhibition, pays a tribute to a Colorado Springs artist that will be pleasant reading to many persons who have long known what he is to a stranger. The extract referred to follows:

One of the pictures most [illegible] graphic is by Charles Craig, or at least that appears to be [illegible] the canvas. It is a stretch [illegible] ered plains, surmounted by [illegible] sky which those fellows know well. Its [illegible] proof of other storms [illegible] with wet and cold [illegible] a hundred signs. [illegible] disturbed by it. The [illegible] mark the movement [illegible] it, and in no lean [illegible] Indians, crouching [illegible] ration of the storm [illegible] these Indians. [illegible] ed on the notion [illegible] fact, is barm[illegible] ception. The [illegible] the picture and [illegible] of these plains. [illegible] ponies, their cadaverous [illegible] blankets, their [illegible] characteristic [illegible] study. It is truth [illegible] man would pay tribute to the [illegible] Craig—if Craig be [illegible] name is a valuable addition [illegible] Western Art Association, for it [illegible] who sees with his own eyes and not with the eyes of some other man.

District Conference.

The district conference of the M. E. Church South convened at the South Methodist church, corner Weber and Cucharras streets.

Rev. P. L. Stanton, the presiding elder, occupied the chair and [illegible] the conference promptly at 9 o'clock.

Nearly all the ministers of the district answered roll call, and lay delegates also present from Denver, Pueblo and La Junta.

Rev. L. L. Hunter was elected secretary. The hours of meeting were set for 9 a. m. to 12 m. and 2 to 5 p. m. The year of conference was fixed and committees were appointed.

Reports from some of the charges were received and considerable discussion was had on some points of special interest to the church, but not of general public interest.

Last evening Rev. J. M. Crow, A. M., of St. Paul's, Denver, preached. He is a pulpit orator of considerable reputation.

To-day is Sunday school convention. It will be held at 9 a. m. A general invitation is extended to all.

District Court.

The testimony in the Keagy forgery case was concluded yesterday morning, but the arguments occupied until 4 o'clock. The case went to the jury at that hour and at 9 o'clock last night they had been unable to reach a verdict. They were locked up for the night.

The grand jury returned true bills as follows: Against John McFall and Benjamin Wright, robbery. These are the two colored men who tried their hands at holding up a Colorado City man Tuesday night. Also against Thomas Shehan and John Keting, for assault with intent to do bodily harm.

Four true bills were returned, the witnesses in the cases being scattered and it being impossible to secure a conviction.

The People vs. John McFall and Benjamin Wright, robbery. Defendants arraigned and plead not guilty.

Ruth A. Newton vs. Conant & Co., dismissed at cost of plaintiff.

The People vs. A. L. Zizer, selling liquor without license. Defendant arraigned and pleads guilty. Fined $50 and costs.

The People vs. Thomas Shehan and John Keting, assault with intent to do bodily injury. Defendant arraigned and plead not guilty. Set for trial November [illegible] at 9 a. m.

The People vs. James Mason. Keeping gambling house and keeping open a gambling house on the Sabbath day. Defendant arraigned and pleads not guilty to the court for gambling, but guilty as to the latter charge.

At 6 o'clock a recess was taken until 8, but at that time court adjourned until this morning. The case against A. M. Young will be tried to-day.

CASES SET FOR TRIAL.

Thirteenth—1,307. People vs. A. M. Young.

Fourteenth—1,351. People vs. Ed Kelly.

Seventeenth—1,311. People vs. Bethel Wilson, John Cain and L. Brownell.

Eighteenth—1,372. People vs. Minnie Smith.

Smoke Prevention.

A number of citizens who are directly or indirectly interested in the problem of smoke prevention, assembled at the Bachman block yesterday to witness a test of the device recently invented and patented by Mr. A. J. Cliff, of Chicago, who was present and conducted the experiments. The apparatus is very simple and consists merely of a steam pipe surrounded by a larger pipe which extends into the front of the furnace. The steam are forced out against the flames. With this increased supply of oxygen a more perfect combustion occurs and the small flakes of carbon which make the densely black smoke are entirely consumed.

The tests were exhaustive but entirely successful. The coal used was the blackest and dirtiest slack that the company could afford, and when the steam was shut off it sent out a heavy black cloud of smoke, but when the steam was turned on the smoke ceased instantly and only a thin—yellowish vapor came from the chimney.

There is no claim that this device prevents any coal, but it is contended to prevent smoke and not to use any more coal. The steam used in blowing the device is more than made up by the heat from the burning smoke. It is claimed, so that there is no waste. The cost of the attachment is very slight, compared with the other smoke consumers. The charge made is $50 a boiler and as the Murphy furnaces, which may be taken as fair examples of their class, cost from $2000 to $6000, it is safe to say that it is by far the cheapest

Colorado Scientific Society.

The college scientific society yesterday evening listened to a very interesting paper by Dr. Magoun, on "Witchcraft Among the Hindoos." The paper was originally prepared for the Christian society of Johns Hopkins university, and the material was chiefly obtained from manuscript in original Sanskrit which Dr. Magoun was the first to translate. The difficulty of doing this was increased by the fact that never before had the world had not occurred in the fragments of Sanskrit literature which had elsewhere been preserved. The spelling too was a puzzling feature, one word which occurred twelve times was spelled in eight different ways. Dr. Magoun's paper was interesting and contained numerous instances of weird schemes for working evil against enemies, love charms and other details of the witchcraft which is so common among Asiatic nations. He spoke of the similarity of some of these practices to those of the Ojibway Indians, but held that this did not necessarily imply identity of origin, as similar causes might have produced similar effects independently. The paper closed with some general remarks on the difference between religion and superstition. The discussion which followed was participated in by President Slocum, Professors Strieby, Cajori and Hendrickson, and others, and brought additional details of the practice of witchcraft among the ancient Greeks and Egyptians, as also among the Anglo Saxons, Norsemen and other Aryans.

The paper on the Protection of Congressional Minorities, which was to have been read by Professor Ball, was postponed to the December meeting on account of the indisposition of the author.

COLORADO COLLEGE.

Arrangements have been made to purchase a number of new hymn books for use in chapel exercises.

Through the united efforts of the students and professors a handsome piano has been placed in the Y. M. C. A. reading room at Hagerman hall.

A number of lock boxes and other conveniences for the reception and distribution of the college mail have been fitted up in the hall way of the dormitory.

The College Tennis club has at last completed its organization, and has a fair membership. The club will use two of the courts belonging the Colorado Springs Tennis club.

A field day, or day devoted to athletic sports by the college students, has been suggested by "Sport" in the columns of the Collegian. It will probably be acted upon this coming spring.

President Slocum is making out a list of books on philosophical subjects to be added to the library. The class in philosophy are beginning the study of Aristotle, and are making good progress.

Our Monday morning chapel exercises will commence at 8:15 instead of 8:30, as heretofore, in order to give time for work in electives. Each student is required to do a certain amount of public elocutionary work, and it is believed that such work will be better done if given before the entire body of students and the faculty. Accordingly there will be two speakers every morning. The speakers for Monday morning are R. D. Barnes and Miss Palmer.

Arrangements are now being made to hold a mass meeting in the opera house, on the evening of December 11, to celebrate the occasion when the $100,000 endowment will have been secured. Distinguished speakers from this and other states will be present and it is proposed to make this event one of great interest to the friends of higher education in the west. Further announcements as to speakers and exercises will be made later.

The [illegible] of the College [illegible] and to the citizens at large. Among the many reasons of interest in the meeting and a description of the Passion Play at Oberammergau will be given by Lt. H. De La Vergne, late of Mexico, by G. M. Keep, and an article on the benefits derived from it by Lorin Goodale. Also [illegible] original poems one from the pen of E. M. Stedman the other by [illegible]. The rest of the contents is bright and readable. Now is the time to subscribe.

More for Reciprocity.

WASHINGTON, November 14.—The department of state has received a dispatch from Ramon O. Williams, consul general at Havana, enclosing a translation of the announcement in the Official Journal of the fact that the chairman of the chamber of commerce, chairman of the Economic society, president of the Tobacco Growers' and Manufacturers' association, and the chairman of the board of sugar planters of Havana have been called to the palace by instructions from Madrid, and requested to appoint a committee to Hon. Frank Castello, of Florissant, is in the city, a witness in the trial of A. M. King which begins today.

Mrs. W. E. McLain, came in from a three months' visit in Iowa, yesterday, and is stopping at 119 East Kiowa street.

A pound social was given at the residence of Rev. A. R. Hawbert, on North Weber street, last night by the members of the Lutheran congregation. The occasion was a very pleasant one to all participating.

The Antlers will move into its handsome new office on the ground floor of the building to-day. There yet remains a small amount of work to be done in this lower portion of the building before the alterations are completed when the hotel will be a model of beauty and perfection.

The ladies of the Baptist church contributed their horse yesterday and added considerable to the proceeds. The attendance was not so large as on the day previous, but the fancy articles were disposed of last night at auction. The sales will add about $100 to the church building fund.

Services at the First Congregational church, corner of St. Vrain and Tejon streets, at 11 a. m. and 7.30 p. m. to-morrow. The pastor, Rev. James B. Gregg, will preach both morning and evening. In the evening will be given the second sermon in the series of "Great Questions." Subject, "What is Life for?"

At the Church of the Assumption, [illegible] to-morrow, corner Nevada avenue and Huerfano street, preaching by the pastor, H. H. Bell, at 11 a. m. and 7.30 p. m. Morning subject, "The Child's Shepherd Savior," sermon for children; Sunday school at 3 p. m., and Y. P. S. C. E. at 6.30. Children are cordially invited to the morning service.

J. W. Taylor, one of the colored men who created a disturbance at the Colored Literary society Wednesday evening, was fined $20 and costs by Magistrate Kelley yesterday. David Weaver, who was taken the night previous, in company with a woman carousing in a respectable house, was fined $20 and costs and the woman $10.

To-day and to-morrow the Union Pacific station will make a special rate to Galveston, Texas, via the D. T. & Ft. R. railroad. The rate from Pueblo will be $11.05 for the round trip, and is made on account of the deep water jubilee at Galveston, November 18 and 19. Tickets limited to three days in transit both ways, and a final limit, November 27, 1890.

The first game of the season in the Colorado Foot Ball association will be played at Golden to-day, between the Colorado Springs club and the Golden club. The Springs team left last night on the Santa Fe for Golden, the following being the team that will participate in the game: Malloch, right guard; Parsons, right tackle; Kerr, centre rush; J. [illegible], right end; Eastman, left guard; Crawford, left tackle; Gleason, left end; R. Bowen, quarter back; Link, right half; Kenyon; M. Barnes, full back; Tucker, left half back.

About 11 o'clock yesterday morning a black collie belonging to Mr. K. H. Field began to act very strangely on the streets and fan snapping and barking at [illegible]. The rumor immediately got abroad that the animal was mad and there was considerable excitement among the people. A crowd of policemen and others thoroughly armed went gunning for the brute and he was finally dispatched by a well directed shot from a gun in the hands of Mr. Wm. Bancroft. It is very hard to believe that it was a bona fide case of rabies, although the dog did seem to have every symptom of it. It would be very unusual for such a thing to happen at this time of year.

Fashions in plays change almost as rapidly as fashions in dress. A short time ago comedy was all the rage and for awhile it looked as if motley was to be the only wear for the stage. Fun is a royal good thing in its way, but one can not make live wholly on laughter any more than one can live healthily on pastry. The serious side of life is now claiming more of the attention of playwrights and their patrons, and tragedy and melodrama are now having their innings or are about to. Chief among the tragedians of the day is Thomas W. Keene. He along of the three Thespian kings of the American stage, Booth, Keene and Barrett, is in perfect form and physical vigor and his recent engagements in the Puget sound country and far northwest, have been a succession of theatrical triumphs. In such roles as Richard III., Richelieu, Sir Giles Overreach, Louis XI. and Mark Antony, he stands at the top of his profession. Assisted by a fine tragic company he will be seen here December 15.

Offenbach's popular comic opera, "The Brigands," will be produced at the opera house next Monday evening by Carleton's opera company. This is one of the largest and strongest opera companies now traveling. "The Brigands" will be produced with special beauty, and the part will call for the full strength of the company. An exchange, speaking of the event, says: "After Mr. Carleton, the most attractive figure in last night's bill was the Fiorella of Miss Clara Lane. Miss Lane's petite physique would scarcely indicate the large and very rich quality of voice which surprises the listener with the first tone which emanates from the small mouth. Miss Lane not only possesses a voice, but she can sing, and the valuable sensation upon hearing her [illegible] proceeds. One longs [illegible] after Miss Lane has finished a song. Miss Jessie Winston in the role of Fragoletto looked and [illegible] character of the intrepid [illegible] who to win his beloved [illegible] became a brigand, and becomes a successful one with becoming spirit and dash. Mr. J. K. Murray, as the Count of Gloria Casolo, displayed good stage manner, [illegible] and action, added to which his excellent baritone would justify in pronouncing him a most decidedly deserving artist—a source of strength to any like organization."

Newton Beers was seen at the Colorado Springs opera house last night for the first time as a star. Mr. Beers was unfortunate in meeting one of the worst storms we have had this season and for that reason largely the audience which greeted him was not large and not representative of the city. Mr. Beers has selected as the leading play in his repertory a dramatization of Tennyson's beautiful poem, "Enoch Arden," the ship wrecked sailor who returns after twelve years to find that another has taken his place in his family. It is a sweet, sad tale, the dramatic possibilities of which are apparent to anyone. The production is a revival of an old play which reproduces the scenes of the poem graphically, retaining much of the poetry. Mr. Beers has a thoroughly artistic sense, and fully grasps and depicts the tragic life of Enoch Arden, yet never once forgetting the gentle nature which could suffer so much. The scene on the Isles of Palms was as artistic a piece of acting as has been seen on our stage for many a day. It was so quiet, and yet so forceful. It is to be hoped that Colorado Springs may see him at some future time in other plays in his repertory. There is little outside the character of Enoch Arden to interest one in the play, but the supporting company could be much improved. Bessie Bennett as Annie Lee gave a very sweet and satisfactory rendition of the character.
